

Masterclass: create natural tooth morphology on anterior and posterior restoration

Ass.-Prof. (DPU) Dr. Maximilian Dobbertin MSc.

In this course, you will learn how to create anatomy followed by a stratification of Anterior & Posterior teeth on the model. Participants will also learn updated scientific backgrounds of direct & indirect restoration with dental composite based on a literature review. In addition, our keynote speaker will provide you valuable tips and tricks on the application of the composite, matrix systems and polishing protocol.

In the practical part, our speaker will guide you through the best approach how to restore both direct and indirect not only with Kerr dental composites, but also with Kerr matrix and polishing systems. In order to provide the optimum aesthetic, long-lasting and smooth restoration.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

1. Therapy planning for direct composite restorations (scientifically proven concepts)
2. Analysis of color and aging characteristics of teeth and their implementation in layer technology
3. Nature-identical anterior tooth restorations in direct adhesive stratification
4. Direct veneers, a high-quality alternative to ceramic veneers
5. Nature-identical posterior restorations in direct and indirect adhesive stratification
6. Fastening protocols for indirect composite restorations
7. Master's program Texture (polishing to set accents, texture and highlights instead of color)
8. Adapt new to existing restorations to create a harmonious overall picture

HANDS-ON TRAINING

1. Mastering and evaluating the practice-oriented design of treatment procedures
2. Understanding and avoiding typical errors during composite restoration
3. Simplifying therapy planning through Kerr restorative system
